02 The Building

04 Creating a Five
Star experience

Branding & Identity

Creating a strong brand will craft an identity that resonates with our target audience. Assets that share a unique brand and story far outperform the competition.

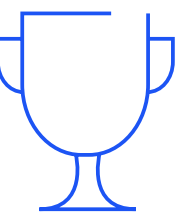

Creating a new identity

Working alongside the landlord we will conduct a visioning session to determine the brand, identity and key messaging for the property. As part of this process we will design the look and feel for the building, including the colours, logo, brochure, internal signage and other visual elements.

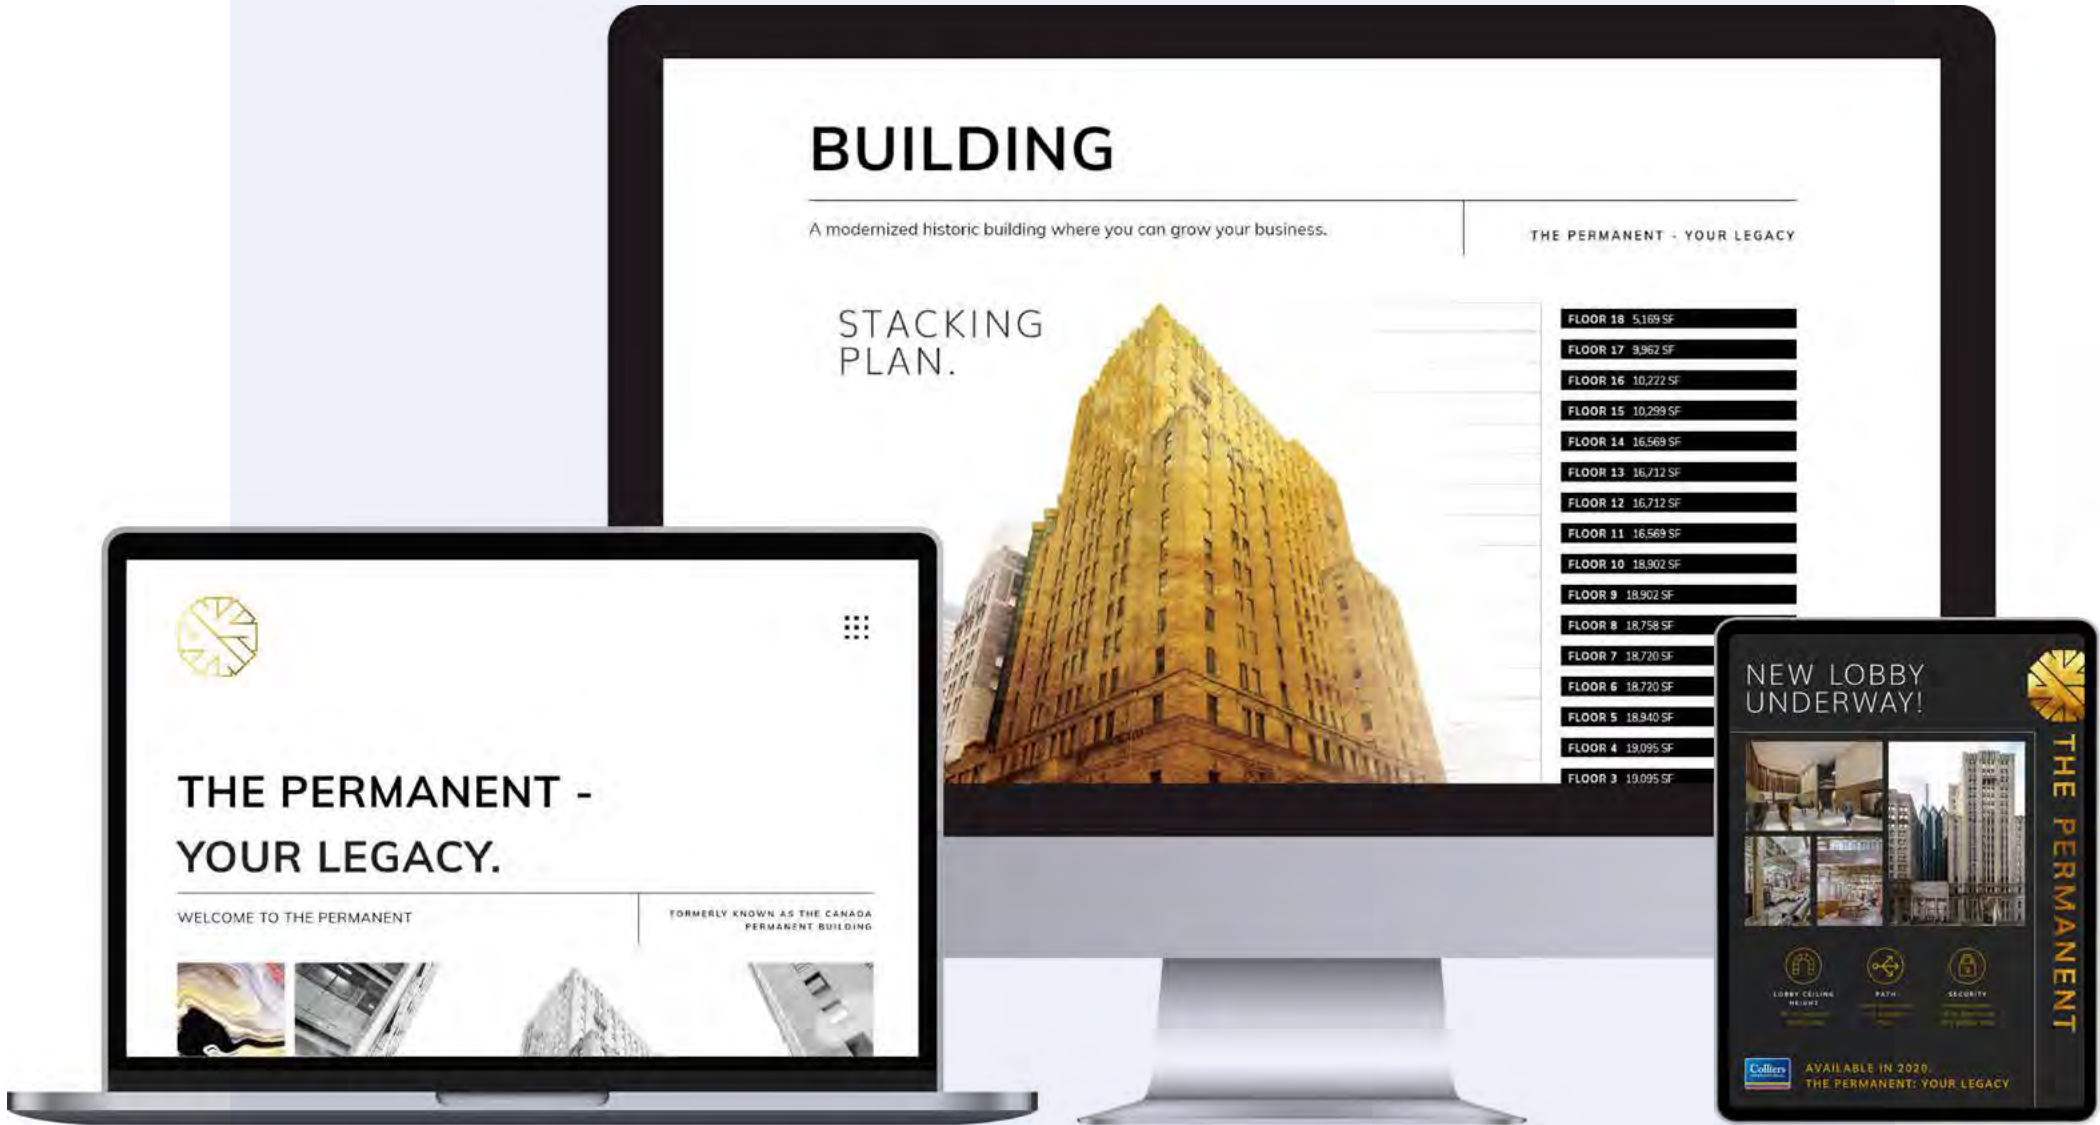

Re-establishing the neighbourhood

Re-establishing the neighbourhood will be one of the most important aspect of the overall branding for this project. We will create a brand that appeals to a variety of industries and a diverse group of employees and business owners. This is an excellent opportunity to bring the attention to [location name] and create a defined neighbourhood that is active and vibrant, while also being accessible and able to accommodate a unique mix of occupiers.

Positioning the 5 star team

In addition to the project specific branding and identity, it is important to develop a narrative for the management team that aligns with the property and 5 star experience. Both occupiers and brokers will seek to understand the team and the fit between their organizations. Through this process we will leverage and augment the strong brand of the Landlord to highlight a competitive advantage for occupiers.

Creating a Productive and Comfortable Work Environment

If the average time your tenant’s employees spend in your building is 90-95%, what are we doing to ensure they are productive and comfortable to create their best work? If there is a 15% increase in employee wellbeing and creativity when exposed to greenery and sunlight, why are we not incorporating a living wall in the main floor lobby? Why are we not finding a location for a community garden project? Or a lush rooftop four seasons solarium?

The good news is that the ownership has invested substantial capital to enhance the property, but instead of focusing on what these upgrades are or what they cost, we should focus on how this will enhance employee productivity. Re-glazing is an example of enhancing the amount of natural light into the property, and if natural light is a key factor in enhancing workplace productivity, this needs to be framed in a way that is relatable to the tenant.

If a partner at his or her law firm knows that the upgrade will lead to a 20 minute increase in average daily billable time per lawyer, that could mean a $1,000,000 increase in annual revenue for a 40 person law firm billing at an average of $300.00 per hour.

The Colliers teams will work with ownership to frame the recent improvements in a way that is relatable to tenants and will work with ownership to add other initiatives to help tenants be more productive.

Concierge Service

Having a dynamic, energetic building concierge to greet and act as a “host” can add personality to the building and make visitors and tenants feel welcome every time they arrive at the building. The concierge will also be the liaison between the third-party services and the tenants. To achieve a Five Star offering attracting someone from the hotel industry is always a bonus.

Examples of service include:

- “Do you need an umbrella for the rain? ”
- “May I accompany you to your car?”
- “I can arrange for flowers to be sent.”
- “I just emailed you your reservation for Sabor at 7:00 PM.”

Positioning

Positioning isn't just a "marketing" conversation.
It's important our marketing message is authentic.

Positioning is a business and marketing strategy that aims to make a brand occupy a distinct identity, relative to competing brands, in the mind of the customer.

It is our point of differentiation - it is targeted to who we want to buy, it is the way we get a premium price in the market and it helps buyers navigate through a clutter of options and choose our project.

The key steps to positioning are:

01

Understand demand through research

- Supply is only half the story
- What do tenants really value?

02

Understand the competitive landscape

- Where are the opportunities to differentiate?
- How is our competition positioned?
- Where are the opportunities/gaps?

03

Define how your asset will compete

- Strengths of the asset as well as what the target market values
- How will we be different?
- How can we create a new category where we are the only choice?
- Positioning a property against the competition starts with identifying the aspects that make your project unique and aligning them with the needs of your target market.

Key Selling Features

Based on the information provided to us and the research that we have concluded to date on the Property, several features of [the property] have become apparent to us, and in our view, the key selling points for the project are:

Promoting the Property

Our marketing efforts will have the widest and broadest possible reach which will ensure that all prospective tenants and partners are exposed to the opportunity

01 Understanding

In this stage, our team will develop a cohesive and comprehensive understanding of the building, the region and the potential buyers. The discovery phase is an integral part of Understanding, and our team will uncover and determine what aspects of the building should be communicated. A transparent and thorough discovery process must occur in order to ensure the message is consistent.

02 Positioning

A brand and logo study will be conducted, generating a name, logo and tagline for the building. A comprehensive look and feel for all marketing collateral will create and support any associations evoked by the brand. It will also provoke a sense of differentiation for the property and brand, influencing how your property will be marketed.

03 Awareness

During the awareness stage of the marketing strategy Colliers ensures the opportunity is exposed to the entire market with a primarily targeting tenants and partners deemed most credible and capable.

Our team will develop a variety of promotional materials to generate brand recognition and recall. Materials must be consistent, on brand, and align with the property's brand and identity.

04 Influence

Targeted prospect lists will be used as the starting point for calling prospective clients and building walks. The brokerage and research teams will generate lists of industry trends (as well as specific firms) in the node. It is in this stage that opportunities and potential organizations are uncovered. Our team will also focus on encouraging interested groups (found during the Understanding stage of the process) to submit pre-qualified offers.

Marketing tools will be utilized to maximize influence and accelerate transactional velocity, addressing potential buyer challenges through an analysis highlighting responses to possible hurdles and how they can be overcome. We will communicate property benefits, amenities, neighbourhood opportunities and possible improvement concepts.

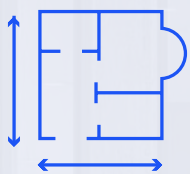

05 Conversion

Offers are submitted, analyzed and summarized in a comparative matrix; recommendations are put forward by Colliers. If appropriate, and often the case, two or more bidders will be short-listed and asked to re-submit their offers to further benefit the landlord and maximize the project goals and success criteria.

Leasing Strategy

As part of our leasing strategy, we will leverage our understanding of current tenants in the market and our knowledge of each impending lease expiry.

By doing so, we give you the best chance to attract a greater share of tenants.

Occupied Square Footage

We estimate there will be 400 tenants located in the Downtown Core that are 5,000 square feet and larger, occupying just over 12 million square feet. 57% of these tenants are larger than 10,000 SF.

A Five-Year Cycle

Based on a five-year cycle, it is assumed that 2.4 million square feet come up for negotiation each year with only roughly 40% of these tenants seriously considering relocation options.

This creates a viable target market of 960,000 of square feet each year.

Capturing the Market

Within the next two years we will need to capture approximately 5% of the market each year.

This does not account for new entrants into the market or companies whose needs may change sooner than anticipated.

Creating Experiences

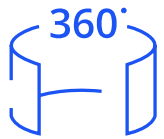

Creating virtual, unique experiences is imperative in our marketing strategies. Our world of technology is continually changing, requiring companies to adjust the way they conduct business. Colliers understands this environment and we evaluate and adapt our marketing strategies on an ongoing basis to stay ahead of the curve.

Colliers continually assesses what target markets are looking for and how you can best position your property.

We do more than marketing – we create memorable experiences.

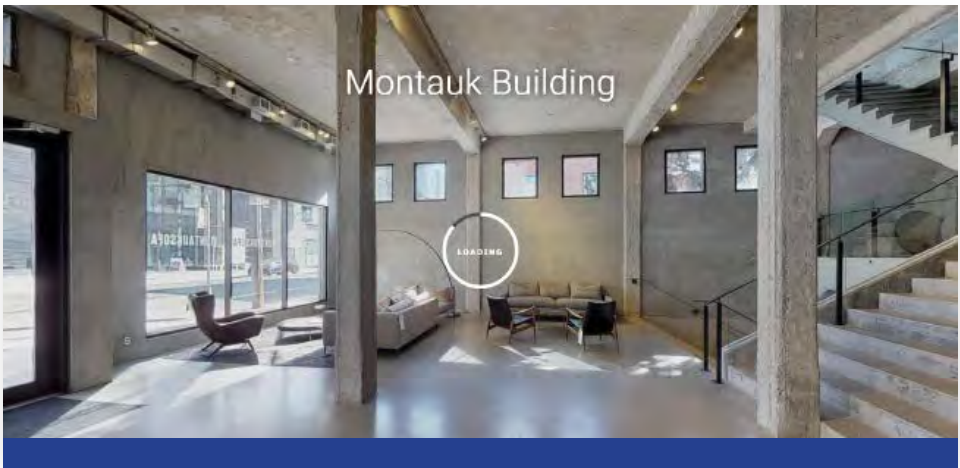

Matterport virtual tour

Elevate your listing with Matterport™ virtual tours

Virtual tours and videos help you bridge the gap between speaking about a property and showing the actual space. As physical tours are not always possible, the value of being able to communicate the realities of a property is higher than it has ever been. Matterport gives you the capability to market to key audiences like remote decision-makers.

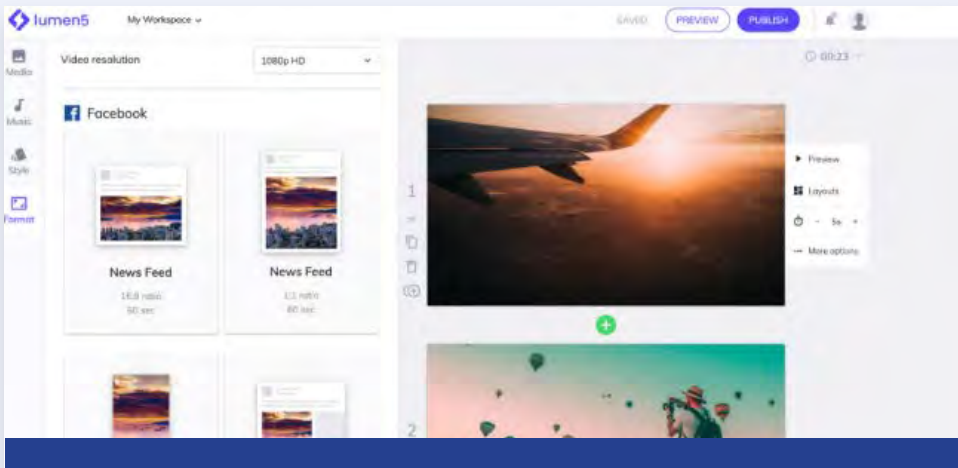

Matterport™

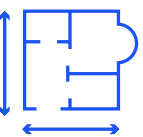

Commercial real estate video production partner

We create property marketing videos that help sell and lease your properties. We use drones, planes and/or helicopters to capture aerial content best suited for your property.

Bring life to your listing with Lumen5 social capabilities

Lumen5 is a video creation platform powered by A.I. that enables us to create engaging video content within minutes. It is specifically designed for social media and is easily adaptable for various social platforms.

Visualize finished space before it's built

There are custom visualization tools that transform the way you market, lease and sell space...before it's built.

Marketing Tactics

Our property marketing capability is second to none in our industry.

When you market your property with Colliers, we ensure it gets exposure via every possible medium – from print, to web, to mobile. We take your listing to where your targets are – so they get the information they need and you get the response you want.

Results matter, but so does your experience

At Colliers, we believe delivering the best possible service experience for our clients is our most sustainable competitive advantage. We use the Net Promoter Score System (NPS) to ensure that we are held accountable for every single client engagement we undertake. The feedback we receive helps us fine-tune our service delivery and offers our clients an honest impression of what it's really like to do business with us. Colliers Canada is the only commercial real estate brokerage in Canada that employs the NPS system to ensure our employees deliver the highest quality service for our clients.

How does it work?

After a project is completed, our clients are asked one question. On a scale from 1-10 how likely are you to recommend Colliers to a friend or colleague? An NPS score is then calculated by taking the percentage of customers who are promoters and subtracting the percentage who are detractors.

Reporting & Accountability

Keeping you informed on what matters most.

One of the most important functions to be performed while managing the marketing and leasing program is accountability for performance to the Landlord. Throughout the course of the marketing and leasing program, the Landlord will be fully informed of all activity on the property.

The Landlord will receive the following reports:

- Daily self-serve access to VTS (at the Landlords option)
- Weekly progress reports
- Monthly overall market updates
- Semi-annually strategy update sessions

Additional meetings will be scheduled as soon as offers are received.
