Valuation

We used our industry-leading experience, along with an income approach to estimate the Property value.

Recommended Price
[$Price]

In valuing the existing improvements, we used the income approach, the most common form of valuation for properties such as the subject.

Given the prominent location in [property], we also employed the direct comparison approach to value the underlying land.

It is our opinion that the strong property value will be the key driver in pushing the achievable capitalization rate lower through the income approach.

Colliers employed the following methodology:

We reviewed the current roll, budgets and financial statements provided to us by the client and calculated an [0-year] cashflow statement as well as the current [year 0] net operating income.

We reviewed sales comparisons for similar retail assets to ascertain an appropriate range in capitalization rates.

We capitalized the net operating income to arrive at a conclusion of value using the income approach.

Finally, we looked at recent land transactions on the [submarket, city] to determine the underlying value.

In summary

	Low	High
CAP Rate	X%	X%
PSF	$X	$X
TTL Value	$X	$X

Valuation

1234 Streetname, City, PROVINCE

[Sample Text] Investment properties with below market rental rates are selling at unprecedented low cap rates (2%-2.5% based on in place rents) – basically ignoring what current yields are offering. One recent, and repeated, transaction was the purchased by NAME representing 000,000 SF in 00 properties at an average price of $000/SF (average building size was 00,000SF) in Dec 2030.

Building: 123,456 SF

The comparable Building Sale Analysis details and our views of the market allow us to suggest value ranges of:

Conservative	Optimistic	Market Outperform
$9,999,999 $99.00 / SF	$9,999,999 $99.00 / SF	* [to move with the market]

*T.M.I. for 1234 Streetnma was high/low.
